Marketing SWGLAS: A Customer-Centered Approach

Tuesday, November 8, 2011 from 1—3 p.m.

Join us at the Southwest Georgia Library for Accessible Services on Tuesday, November 8, 2011 from 1 – 3 p.m. with Christie Koontz, Ph.D., to learn the fundamental concepts of marketing and the practical steps in any successful marketing plan. Participants will develop an understanding of marketing, identify marketing activities within the Southwest Georgia Library for Accessible Services, and generally de-bunk the myths of marketing. Marketing is a process you do over and over again—a tried and true systematic approach for matching services and products (offers) to a customer’s wants, needs, and desires. Customer satisfaction is the goal, increasing the acquisition of goods or a service is typically the objective. Marketing is one of the primary forces of any successful business. And it is the key ingredient in the success of any library or information agency—physical or virtual. Successful marketing is the systematic process of identifying a customer group(s) and what they want, efficiently delivering that offer, effectively communicating the offer, and evaluating success, based upon measurable objectives.

Dr. Koontz is Associate Professor at Florida State University’s College of Communication and Information. Koontz teaches and conducts marketing activities for the College, co-authored a virtual campus marketing course utilizing geographic information system software (GIS) which can be found at www.esri.com, and is the Director of GeoLib (U.S. Public Library Geographic Database). GeoLib is a research program of the College of Communication and Information at Florida State University.
